USEFUL LESSONS FROM EVERY DAY LIFE ON THE FARM.

The accompanying plan of the surroundings of a country house is described as follows by Country Gentle-

The grounds include about two acres, sixteen rods facing the public road and extending back twelve rods to the rear of the carriage house. The carriage road enters nearly in front of the dwelling, forming a slight curve, and sweeping in a circle in front of the house for returning or passing on to the carriage

On the left is a standard pear orchard, or such cherry, plum and apple trees of select and handsomely growing varieties as may be preferred, planted in quincunx form. This orchard may be seeded to grass if kept closely shaven with the lawn mower and top dressed with fine manure or compost late in the autumn of each year. Foul Brood in the Apiary.

When once foul brood gets possession in the apiary of the ignorant and careless the wisest course is to burn the dis-eased colonies. Intelligent apiarists are, however, advised to try the remedy of transferring during the honey flow, approved by Quimby, Dr. Mason, Professor Cook and others, who assume that no disease or disease germs dwell upon or within the bees, but either in the honey, the brood or in and about the cells. Professor Cook, in a bulletin just received from the Michigan station, ad-

Following is a brief summary of results of experiments to determine the effects of the leading elements of plant food used in various combinations on the production of corn at the Kentucky station: In those plots where potash was one of the ingredients of the fertilizer used there was a marked increased yield both in corn and fodder. Where a fertilizer was used without potash there was scarcely any increase in corn, but a considerable increase in fodder. The greatest increased yield was made where ooth nitrogen and potash were applied. Muriate of potash, when applied alone, made a marked increased yield over the plots containing no fertilizer. The same results were obtained last year in a simi-

Milk for Poultry. Where skimmed milk is plentiful derote a portion of it at least to your poultry. Supply it occasionally in form of curd made by heating the milk until the whey separates from the solid part. Milk is very nutritious, and as its constituents closely resemble the white of the egg it is especially desirable for lay-ing fowls. Clabbered milk is also eagerly eaten by fowls and is good for them. If the bees languish and you find a lark, stringy, salvy mass, which is elastic, in the cells; if the caps are many of them sunken and pierced with irregular noles, you may be sure of the presence of foul brood. That bees mix water with honey is a well known fact, but does not prove that they make honey. Bees do not make honey; they simply gather what nature has already made, says the editor of The American Bee Journal. To make bee culture pay G. W. Demaree advises good, plain hives and fixtures, as cheap as is consistent with utility, which means avoid all expensive patent hives and patent devices that are untried or that promise nothing for the Growing Corn for Fodder and Silage. As a summary of what has been learned in growing corn for fodder and silage the directors of the agricultural experiment station of Cornell university, New York, advise the selection of the largest varieties that will fully mature before frest in the locality where grown.

At the spring trotting meeting at Vienna, Austria, on May 11, the American-bred horse Judge Davis. 2:18‡, won the Austria handicap, worth $560 to the winner. Special attention is called to the fact that heretofore it has been a common practice to sow or plant corn for fodder and ensilaging entirely too thick. Starch and sugar are not fully developed without an abundance of sunlight, and immature plants are likely to contain a very large per cent of water.
